Description
Platform: Splunk Cloud 6.5.0 Version: Lookup Editor Browsers: Chrome current, IE 11
I have a (KV) lookup that is owned by nobody, populated by an outputlookup in a scheduled job running as a named admin user.
Issue:
I cannot see any entries in the lookup edit interface, because:
- we have hundreds of users, and the "nobody" user is not visible in the first chunk of the pulldown
- the pulldown does not scroll ( i have tried, in both browsers, arrow keys, pgup/dn, mouse, and force of will, all without success)
- there is no "all" that shows all users' entries

Making the user dropdown easier to use

This change makes the user dropdown easier to use when there are lots of users.

Reference #1697.

The dropdown has been updated in that it:

- Is scrollable
- Puts the nobody user at the top
- Put the owner and the current user in the second and third rows (since these are more likely to be clicked)
- Sorts the other users in alphabetical order (makes them easier to find)

I still would like to employ some filtering style of dropdown. I haven't found a good one that I like yet though.
