Description

The following would be great:

When you create a new file within the Lookup Editor it will be saved with the permission "Global". That is not so nice because everyone can see and use this lookup which can be handy but problematic when you do NOT want this.

Wanted:
A setting where you can change that behaviour so you can decide if the lookup file should be visible for any or for a a specific app only like the normal splunk permission option for each object within lookup Editor (when you list the lookups you have an "Export" button and somewhere here a permission button would be needed)
